a 21-year-old cuts open a 12-hour fentanyl patch, squeezes the drug onto tinfoil, and smokes the entire contents through a "tooter," the stripped plastic cartridge from a bic pen.

New York-based JPMorgan is paying a $127.5 million penalty in the settlement with the SEC and another $127.5 million in restitution plus $11.8 million in interest.

As far as the Warren Commission is concerned, regarding all conspiracy theories as equally false is as dumb and divorced from reality as the most woolly headed 9/11 truther.

To clear this up a little bit I would like to suggest you two ways how this task can be done, the first variant will introduce you to "static".
